Lifestyles Project – Draft Website

Usability description – Header menu:

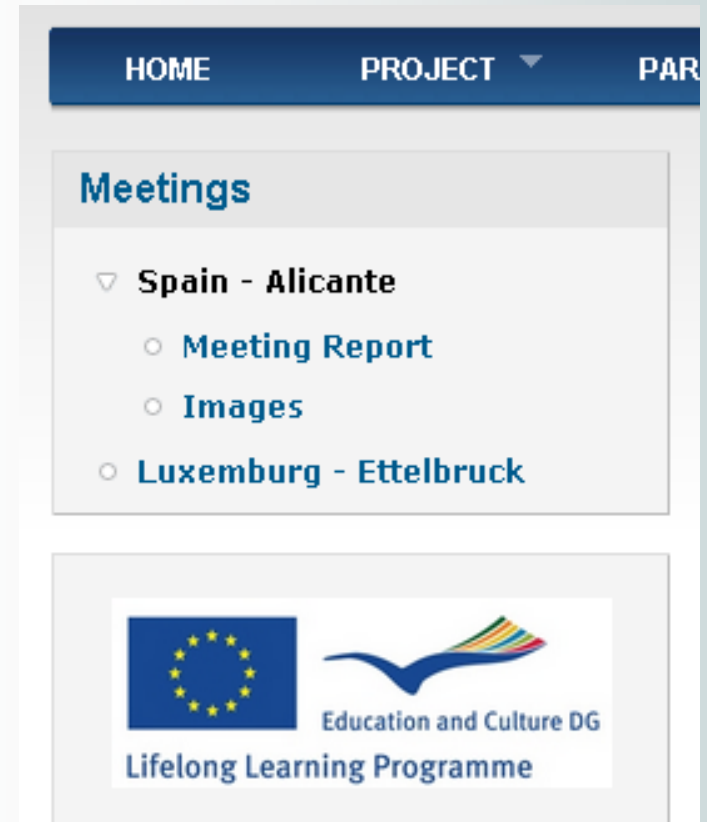

- ❑ The header menu contains the main sections of the website.
- ❑ Every main menu option displays a submenu with the second level options of this section.
- ❑ Also when a second level option has suboptions the menu shows another submenu

Usability description – Left side menu:

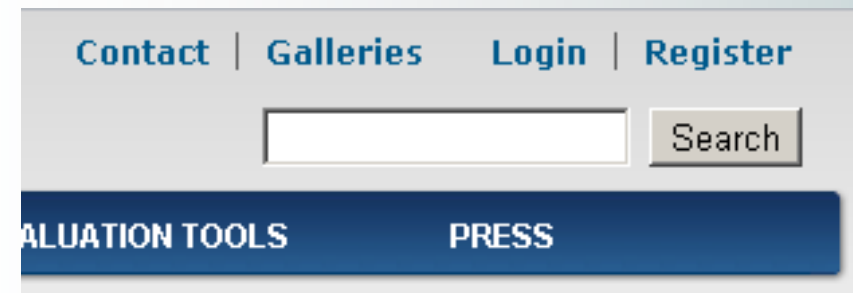

- ❑ To provide better accesibility to touch devices we provide a static left side menu.
- ❑ This left side menu displays the second level options and the next sublevels.
- ❑ This is necessary because some devices can't show the slide effect of the main menu

Lifestyles Project – Draft Website

Usability description – Secondary menu:

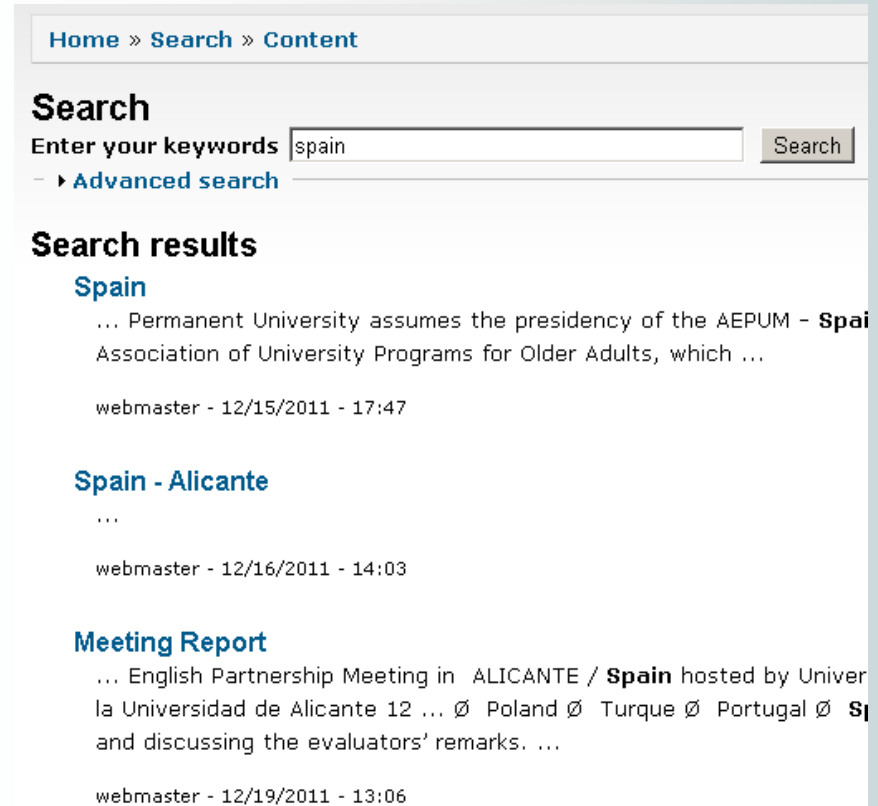

- ❑ The secondary menu show options that aren't in the information structure of the website.
- ❑ These options can be tools like images galleries, contact forms, login forms, help links.
- ❑ This menu has less importance than the main menu but also we need to show it in every page of the website

Lifestyles Project – Draft Website

Usability description – Search form:

- ❑ We provide access to the search form in every page of the website.

These figures impel the partners to believe that there is a need for persons belonging to different generations to stay in touch to avoid future clashes. This necessity derives directly from the partners' on the field experience where IG issues, involving children, parents, teacher-trainers and seniors, have to be addressed (see D.5 European value).

Translation system – Considerations:

- ❑ Each partner is responsible of a language.
- ❑ In this context of partners the web is translated in SEVEN languages.
- ❑ Maintaining the content of the web in the seven languages needs a great amount of job of each partner.
- ❑ We need to decide a workflow, for example:
 - Every partner publish a content always in English and in his mother tongue language (For example: English and Spanish).
 - The rest translate the content using the English version as a source (For example: English to Portuguese, English to French...).
- ❑ Also we can consider to use only the English language in the web to decrease complexity and the amount of translation tasks (ALL content ONLY in English).
